

Reds Edgeearer Cold Domination

Communist Of Europe First Step In Program

By Lt.-Col. Grigori A. Tokiev

Soviet jet and air research expert who a few months ago fled his country, disillusioned and dismayed, to find freedom in Britain. Lt.-Colonel Tokiev carried out secret tasks for the Politburo and was in preference to the innermost circles of the Kremlin. This is the second article in a series of five.

In December, 1946, the Soviet Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Molotov, arrived in Berlin on his way back to Moscow from a bitter struggle with the West at UNO and in the Council of Foreign Ministers.

The long-suppressed conflict between the Soviet Union and the Atlantic community had for the first time been brought into the open.

But this, was, of course, no surprise to us on the Soviet side. For, the so-called "cold war" was already nearly two years old.

Molotov addressed a restricted meeting of the higher S.M.A. (Soviet Military Administration) personnel, and in a brilliant mood, he conveyed the following ideas:

"The Americans think too much of themselves. They are rich and arrogant and have imperialistic tendencies. They are determined to make Europe an American colony."

"We have a different aim, a great aim—a united Democratic Germany, with Berlin as its capital. We shall deliver a hard blow in the face of the Western Powers, who are the real enemies of the working classes of Europe and therefore of the Soviet Union."

Propaganda Violence Up

Political propaganda violence mounting even before this meeting. But after it it became even more open, coarse, and intensive. The meeting itself was an additional clear indication of the ripening idea of sabotaging the co-ordination of policy between the Allies in Germany.

As a direct result of this meeting, on Molotov's instructions, Shostakovskiy, the Soviet Consul-General in Berlin, entrusted me with a mission of obtaining as much information as possible concerning conditions in the Western zone.

Domination of Europe and the economic communization of many nations and peoples is the deciding factor of world power—this one of the Politburo's top program.

The idea was, of course, instilled with the germ of Bolshevism and its grandiose scheme of world revolution. But so long as a non-Communist Germany barred the way westward that dream was impossible of fulfillment.

Germany Most Vulnerable

In measuring Germany, the Politburo is motivated by the Marxist theory that Germany, as the European country, is most vulnerable to Communism.

A comparatively young country, it has grown with terrific speed on an industrial basis supported by large concentrations of exploited labour. Two crushing defeats have supported its convulsion and given this nation.

According to Soviet theory, enunciated by the Communists, followed by the Politburo, and accepted as gospel by the German Communist workers are ripe for proletarian revolution.

The attitude of the German Communist Party was best explained some time before the war by Heler, a member of the Central Committee of the Party. He said that the only way for Germany was the creation of a dictatorship of the proletariat and Soviet power under the direction of the V.K.P. (D)—All-Union.

Theory Will Become Fact

I can only say that if Soviet power is ever permitted to force its way to the Ruhr, the theory will certainly become fact and Communism will follow where the population likes it or not.

The things which stand in the way are the munitions of the atom bomb and the air superiority of the West as well as the internal unrest in the U.S.S.R.

I am appalled and puzzled by the reluctance of the people of the West to perceive the fate the Soviet Union is plotting for them. This was what struck me most when I first came West.

The theme of the inevitable struggle with a decadent capitalism doomed by its internal contradictions is the heart of the Communist creed.

The real issue, I believe, is the victory in the present of Soviet intentions.

The theme of the inevitable struggle with a decadent capitalism doomed by its internal contradictions is the heart of the Communist creed.

Edmonton, Alaska

We're Growing Fast, But Not That Fast

Everyone is aware of Edmonton's growing power, prestige and population. But very few people realize the importance of this new service that our town's growth is so great that it is sometimes thought of as a "second city" in Alaska.

Edmonton, right—not simply Edmonton, Alberta is pretty far from Alaska, but it is a great big city.

Revelation of this international importance came on a letter from the news photo service of the renowned Associated Press in New York.

Mr. Eric Bland, the Bulletin, Edmonton, Alaska, said: "I didn't know we had taken on the name of Edmonton when we do, we should be quite a city."

Premier Ernest Manning: "We're certainly going to be the first city in the world where they'll vote up there!"

Man Ate Off Garbage Heap In City for Four Months

Police brought grey-bearded, Irish-born Pat Walsh back to civilization Friday after more than four months of living off a garbage heap.

His home on the outskirts of the city, had been a broken down isolated shack built of cardboard cartons and Christmas tinsel, the scraps of bread and vegetables discarded by Edmonton housewives.

Pat, the veteran of many a First World War campaign, was brought in by police following complaints by a city garbage collector who feared the elderly pauper would freeze to death.

"I wouldn't have frozen," he chuckled to a Bulletin reporter who saw him shortly after he had been bailed and clothed by workers in the Civil Relief Department. "But it was mighty cold out there."

The misadventure of this battle-hardened man is explained by a standard argument that, owing to Western interference, the Communist leaders have not been able to reach the industrial masses in the Western zones.

The instant they are able to do so, then—according to the theory—the German proletariat will see the light.

Railway Truckers Under Fire

Removal of CPR From Highways Is Asked

Outing of the Canadian Pacific Railway and subsidiary companies from the over-the-highway trucking business was recommended at a meeting of the Alberta Motor Transport Association held in Edmonton Friday.

Recommendation opposing the operation of the railways in the truck transport business received the unanimous approval of the meeting held in the Masonic Temple.

MONOPOLY CLAIMED
In making the recommendation the association claimed such action should be taken in the public interest because of monopolistic nature of the railway.

Addressing the recommendation to the provincial government the association asked that no further public service vehicle certificates be granted to the Canadian Pacific Express Company or to Dutch of Canada Limited, a CPT subsidiary, from April 1, 1949.

SAFETY MEASURES
Equipment of all passenger vehicles with flares or lanterns to be used when stopped on highways was also urged by the association. Use of such flares, it was claimed, would help eliminate accidents in which parked cars were struck by passing vehicles.

Commentation was given the Alberta Department of Public Works that the white line painted on the centre of highways and for the reasons placed before the association was stated contribute substantially to general safety in highway driving.

AIRMEN UNDAUNTED BY COLD WEATHER

Cold weather is no obstacle to RCAF and commercial airline pilots flying Northern routes out of Edmonton, but resulting fog occasionally causes delays in take-off times.

Aircraft leaving this city have been keeping up normal pay-loads under ideal flying conditions during the past three weeks, with only a small number of planes having been delayed for short periods, it was learned.

Fog has been mostly responsible for what little difficulty was encountered in this area, while generally good flying conditions have been prevailing throughout the north to far-away Akavik.

Traffic Police Urged To Keep on the Job

Edmonton's understaffed traffic police squad should devote their full time to traffic duties and not be required to check parking meters nor deliver court summonses.

Edmonton Safety Council made this recommendation along with other suggestions to the city authorities following a meeting held Friday.

The meeting also suggested ordinary beat-pounding patrolmen should be alert to check motorists who violate safety regulations.

The safety council thought service garages should not be permitted to use streets as storage space for cars or trucks. Congestion resulting from this practice is dangerous, it was suggested.

Construction of a sidewalk on the north side of 115 avenue at 79 street should start at once, the council suggested.

A dangerous situation is created here since motorists park their cars tight against the wall of the Western Steel Products building, forcing pedestrians to walk on the road.

Construction of the sidewalk also plan street parades, carnival games contest, dog derby for the week, and will erect several ice palaces.

Soviet Moves Toward Domination of World

upon me by the members of the various Western groups and nations.

The disputes and conflicts among the Western Allies are set forth in a comprehensive and exhaustive detail. But of Soviet affairs—nothing.

That vast blank area—the terra incognita of contemporary Soviet memoirs—is ignored, even perhaps for an occasional wistful regret that Stalin and Molotov had not been as much fun as Churchill.

Clearly, two wars went on at the same time: the first devoted to put down aggression, the Soviet war (after its survival from the German onslaught) had been assured to weaken the West.

To understand where Soviet policy headed today one must trace it back some distance in time and space.

Hitler fooled Stalin. The Politburo had no intention of entering the European war, at least before the issue had been decided.

Hitler's idea that Germany would be an instrument for smashing the main European enemy of Russia (Britain) and, eventually, the United States.

Hence the non-aggression pact and the satisfaction both sides had in the sense of opportunism and basic Marxist theory.

The Soviet Union joined Germany to bring down Britain and the U.S. Then, the German society was bleeding to death, and the Soviet Union would intervene and dominate the world.

Hitler struck first, and his fierce lunges to the East were monstrous enough. Between 1941 and 1945 the Soviet Union had to fight for its life, and the Soviet Union was a Communist hegemony in Europe was temporarily established.

By Stalin's command all the standard Soviet criticisms of Western society were dropped. The Soviet Union was to be a model of property and restraint previously unknown in Soviet politics. But while the veneration had ended, praise and understanding never took its place.

In the West the orators praised the Soviet Union. The Soviet "leaders" regarded it typically as a marriage of convenience.

Two things continued to end this thing in 1945. One was the Russian Union after Stalingrad and El Alamein that Germany was beaten.

The other was the decision of Churchill's brilliant plan for an Anglo-American thrust into Europe from the Balkans.

STATE OF PANIC

Churchill's scheme threw the Kremlin into a state of panic—but not for the reasons commonly supposed.

Kennedy feared that Churchill's plan, if boldly carried out, would lead the Anglo-American forces ahead of the Red Army in Western Europe.

The worldwide clamour for a Second Front in Western Europe was the immediate cause of the panic.

There is a curious illusion in the West that Churchill, like Roosevelt and attack without delay after the war, was ignorant of the complexities of the combined warfare.

Actually, the contrary was true. The Soviet General Staff was sure the Anglo-American forces would be the immediate cause of the panic.

The Atlantic was judged to be almost invulnerable, and the unlikely event the landing succeeded, it was assumed that the western armies would be too weak to penetrate deeply into the continent.

DRAW MAIN STRENGTH

But, whatever the outcome, the battle would draw the main strength from the East; and at the opportune moment, before the Anglo-American invasion, should succeed in extricating them, and before the Anglo-American could turn themselves around, the Soviet Union would burst through the German rear, take Berlin and roll on at least as far as the Rhine.

That was the Russian plan. That was the reason why Stalin and Molotov before and after Tehran argued so insistently against Churchill for confining the Anglo-American landing to Western Europe.

Soviet policy from 1944 on was that Germany should be destroyed at all costs by Soviet troops and on no account by any others.

By that time the Politburo had begun to look beyond the German defeat, already assured. They had turned on to Task One—Europe.

SEPARATE TERMS

At the time I, along with more than one Soviet officer, wondered what Stalin would have done had the Anglo-American forces, under threat of otherwise making separate terms with Germany, had arrived a new front wherever they chose.

I doubt that Stalin would have yielded even then.

But in any case the unexpected emergence of the American general Marshall and Eisenhower as champions of the cross-channel crossing across Stalin the order of such a decision.

It was in Moscow when the Anglo-Americans landed in France. The Russians were aroused in the slightest thing but the expression of anything one might have expected from a hard-headed Russian. He retrieved through the gallant action of a single decision.

Rather, they were afraid that if the Allied landing succeeded and a quick thrust to the sea was made in consequence, the Soviet Union would be too late to occupy the whole of Germany.

EXPRESSIONS BELIED

Although Stalin sent a message of congratulations to the Western quietness struck me as appropriate to American power, he seemed to me to be expressing the ideal embodiment of the model of idealism expressed by the words, "An iron fist in a velvet glove."

Zhukov admired his professional competence and the exchanges between them were most pleasant. But the prevailing feeling in the S.M.A. was that Eisenhower was soft and one could usually get things out of him.

Montgomery on the other hand, spoke a language the S.M.A. understood—hard and direct, and constructed largely around the word "No."

Montgomery and Churchill between them administered the Politburo in a set back. Under the agreement for the partition of Germany, Schleswig-Holstein was to be occupied by the British. But Stalin hoped to seize it first.

Marshall Rokossovsky, commander of the Western Front, was reprimanded for having lost the race to the British.

Stalin's desire to occupy Schleswig-Holstein was dictated by the fact that the Politburo plans to achieve this, it is necessary to be master of the Kiel-Copenhagen-Malmö line.

It is impossible without holding Schleswig-Holstein.

CHURCHILL SAW DANGER

Churchill, however, saw the danger and, better, Rokossovsky to the fact that the British were in the S.M.A.'s unenviable position.

The Kiel-Copenhagen-Malmö line is vital to the German Northern Germany. In the event of a successful British advance, the forces will probably sink their first blow in this direction.

After the occupation of Berlin the Soviet policy was based on the struggle for German unity under Communist control.

The Western Allies were to be ignored. The Communist Social Party would become all-German. The Communist Social Party would be the only party in the Western zone.

It was hoped that by standard Soviet tactics of pressure and intimidation, the Communist Social Party would follow out the instructions of the Communist Social Party for the organization of a complete penetration of the Western zone by Soviet agents.

THE PLOT IN SHORT

The plot, in short, was to seize the Politburo in the Western zone and, by force, to bring the German puppet operations, and compelling the German people to live with the West.

Much as the Politburo wanted to see the German people live with the West, the Politburo was not to be deceived by the election of the West. The German people have to be done by some kind of uprising of the German people.

Unfortunately for the Soviet rulers, the Germans showed themselves to be more intelligent than they were given credit for by the first favourable opportunity.

The so-called "Free German Committee" was created by the Communist Social Party under the direction of Wilhelm Pieck as far back as 1942.

The aim of this committee was the training of cadres for the "ultimate installation of Soviet power in Germany after the rise and defeat."

GERMAN EMIGRES USED

So significant was this purpose the German emigres in the U.S.S.R. and the great numbers of prisoners of war, many of whom came from Western Germany, Austria and as far west as Alsace Lorraine.

The main body of prisoners were sent to the Soviet Union, and the "Stalinist" lines, after they were repatriated.

In addition, the reparations agencies have provided Soviet agents with a ready-made training for penetrating the Western zones in the pretext of inspecting industrial plants.

Also, by another of those Western tactics of pressure and intimidation, the Soviet Union had to have done so much to simplify Soviet policy, the same principle, and has been available to the S.M.A. propaganda personnel.

So far the Politburo stands frustrated. But the struggle is certain to be resumed violently at any time and in any way by the peoples of the U.S.S.R.

Dumb case, a plant found in Iraq, Africa, has been found, which paralyzes the power of speech of one who chews the stem.

Good Manners May Save Money

How are your street car manners? For sure, Tawasi Club members can say good, isn't that so? But there are too many children with bad street car manners and it may quite possibly be that those manners are going to cost of your money.

When grown-ups put in a long day of hard work they're pretty tired by the time they get on the bus and head for home. And of all the things that can go wrong in a day, the last straw is to have to stand all the way home on a crowded bus while children take up the seats—and it's even worse if the children are noisy.

The dog ate beef today.

PAY TWICE AS MUCH

Now, where the grown-ups have the last word is that they pay more than twice what children do for their seats. And when they get on the bus, they can go to the Edmonton City Council and say that they want to be paid twice as much as the children. And that happened not so long ago, and now the Edmonton City Commissioners have recommended to council that children travelling during the business rush hours and in the evening should pay the full adult fare.

Yvonne Van Hook went again and told us more about herself. Her hobbies are skating, reading and piano playing which she has studied for four years.

Gladys Kowalsky wrote a letter with her application to join the Tawasi Club.

Dennis, Yvonne and Gladys all ended their letters by saying they were glad to be a part of the Tawasi Club and that they enjoy it very much.

VALENTINE CONTEST SET FOR TAWASIS

Valentine's Day is just around the corner. Any day now you'll be up to your eyeballs in red paper, dollys, paper lace and glue. So just to get you off to a good start we'll have a "Beautiful Valentine" contest.

There will be prizes for the three most beautiful Valentines sent in by Tawasi members.

Entries must be the work of Tawasi members and must be postmarked not later than midnight Mon. Feb. 7. They will be judged on originality and neatness. Bulletin staff artist Bill Baird will be one of the judges and he will choose two more.

Your age will be taken into consideration and you can have advice from other people, but above all the Valentine itself must be made by you with your own hands.

Sincerely,
Ruth Barry

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Day of the House opening—January 26—Parliament's usually sedate Centre Block takes on the air of a department store basement during a rummage sale.

Members of the Cabinet, House officials and the Governor General's entourage drop their dignity at the door and hurl themselves into the mad dash to find a robing room. For all the robing that has to be done, a room is about as necessary as a fur coat to a Palm Beach sun-bather. The robe is just the usual black garment thrown over the shoulders. It could be done as easily in the corridors of the House of Commons as in a special room. That's what private members have to do. All but one.

MATTER OF TRADITION

For others, besides members, the robing room is a matter of tradition. Cabinet members and House officials would sooner go without the robe than have to do it in plebeian fashion in the corridor. Damage to prestige would be irreparable. This year, tradition will be shattered. One private member will have a robing room.

L. Mackenzie King, the Liberal member of the Commons for Glenora, will have his own room and an assistant to dress his shoes and help him on with the robe. Mr. King will use the robing room of L. Clare Meyer, Clerk of the Senate.

SUNK TO 16TH

Mr. King had sunk to 16th in line for a robing room this year. When it is recalled that all Cabinet members, all deputy ministers but one, all assistant deputies but three and half the Supreme Court and the Senate were appointed by the former prime minister, it's not surprising the plain Glenora MP got the room.

Finance Minister Abbott should speak to his publicity staff.

Recently, according to his departmental public relations officers, Mr. Abbott spoke in New York—in quotes—"on Canada's improving exchange situation." The same day, still in quotes, the two-places-at-one-time finance minister was "apologizing" in Ottawa for "adding $200,000,000 to Canada's $600,000,000 surplus."

Canada's National Dairy Council is sore as a burned finger at the way the government floundered around with lifting the oleo ban. The government's delays, back-tracking and fuzzy press releases whipped up more artificial news interest in margarine than butter has been able to buy.

WILLING TO PAY

The Dairy Council feels also got so much free publicity out of the government's acrobatics the industry should be willing to pay the government for it.

Recovered from the heartbreak of defeat at the National Progressive Conservative convention, the PC's Young Lochinvar is riding out of the west for the opening of parliament.

Heading eastward with his boots and saddle, and apparently recalled to the leadership of George Drew, John Diefenbaker is carrying on in his new leader's footsteps.

WAGING CRUSADE

Taking his cue from George Drew, Diefenbaker is waging a crusade against Socialism from the Coast right back to the east.

In parliament, the Lake Centre member will be Mr. Drew's backstop, sitting directly behind the leader in the House of Commons. Members of the Commons this

Loy, Grant Team Up at Capitol

'Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House' Now Showing

It's one of the funniest pictures ever turned out of Hollywood and it's one that every member of the family will enjoy. It's "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," starring Myrna Loy, Cary Grant and Melvyn Douglas, now showing at the Capitol theatre.

You'll laugh yourself into the sides of your chair at the sight of this hilarious comedy about a family living in a cramped Manhattan apartment, who decide to remodel an old farm house in suburban Connecticut, rather than continue in their crowded quarters.

Cary Grant, as Mr. Blandings, dreams about the house he wants in the country and then decides to do it. He is one of the funniest men in the hills running up on his dream starts becoming a reality. He turns in a masterful performance.

His fantasy haunts him until he neglects his work and is in danger of losing the job which will pay the bills.

Grant's antics throughout will have you in stitches. Myrna Loy, once again registers with a brilliant performance in the role of which she has become to be his suitor on the screen that of being the noble wife of an erring husband and she is exceptionally good in this picture as she sticks with him through all the ups and downs, tragic, yet humorous situations.

Melvyn Douglas, as Bill Cole, lawyer friend of the Blandings and Myrna's old beau, who creates the love triangle, also scores with his share of laughs in this picture. You'll not want to miss.

DISTRICT NEWS IN BRIEF

Camrose Amateur To Organize Hams

CAMROSE, Jan. 22.—E. R. Langbell, proprietor of Langbell's Studio in Camrose and whose call letter is VE6EL, has been selected to set up an organization of local amateur radio operators prepared to furnish organized emergency communication in time of disaster.

Mr. Langbell's assignment, which carries the title of "Emergency Coordinator," is to hand together members of the amateur radio service in this community to perfect arrangements for emergency radio communication by hams in the event of natural disasters or other emergencies.

Mr. Langbell, as ARRL emergency co-ordinator, will call local members of amateurs, establish common operating procedures and arrange regular drill periods where the hams' personal stations may be mobilized under simulating emergency conditions.

His duties also include planning with the local chapter of the American Red Cross and other relief agencies, as suggested in the working understanding the ARRL Emergency Corps has with the national headquarters of the American Red Cross and other agencies. Liaison will be established also with local protective services, such as fire and police departments.

Mrs. E. Morin Dies At Age 85

ST. PAUL, Alta., Jan. 22.—One of St. Paul's best known and loved persons, Mrs. Elizabeth (Mother) Morin passed away in the General Hospital at Edmonton recently, in her 85th year. She was born Elizabeth Kelly at Alpena, Michigan. Following her marriage she spent 12 years in the Yukon where her husband was mine inspector during the Klondike gold rush.

They then moved to Edmonton where Mrs. Morin was immigration inspector until ill health forced him to retire. In 1909 they took a homestead near St. Paul. On Mrs. Morin's death, about 25 years ago, Mother Morin moved to St. Paul town where she resided until 1942 when she went to Youville, Ontario at St. Albert.

She leaves to mourn three sons, Alphonse of Vancouver, Napoleon of St. Paul, Minn., and Desiderius of Spokane, Washington; two daughters, Rev. Sister Leona of Tacoma, Wash. and Marie Leona of Oakland, California, also seven grand-children.

Federal services were held at St. Joseph's Church at Edmonton with Father Gerard officiating. The Rev. Father's choir rendered hymns. Pallbearers were: Messrs. P. Bennett, A. A. Galt, J. M. Fontaine, Wm. Knuth, Roland Martin and Pvt. High. Interment took place in St. Edmund Catholic cemetery.

HOLLYWOOD.—(AP)—This is a column to draw attention to Hollywood's nicest romance.

The girl: a black-haired, 16-year-old beauty named Elizabeth Taylor.

The boy: A handsome football champion and army officer named Glenn Davis.

Here is a movie match as all-American as his football rating. They met not in a sunset strip saloon, but playing touch football at the beach. Their romance is being carried on across two oceans and a continent, but by mail only.

The Kearns took him to an afternoon party at the Taylor's Malibu home. At first Elizabeth was too busy to notice him. Then when a touch football game was being organized, she grabbed his hand and said, "You play on our side."

They were together a great deal in the few weeks before he slipped out for Korea. Nearly all of it was spent at the Taylor home. Neither of them notices her drinks, and they don't like night clubs.

Their families were here for a guest appearance. Hubie asked him if he'd like to meet Elizabeth. He said, "You play on our side."

BATHURST, Canada.—(CPI)—The first undertaking of Britain's Colonial Development Corporation in Canada will be an investment of $200,000.00 to clear 10,000 acres of forest for the production of coarse grain to be fed to poultry and pigs.

They then moved to Edmonton where Mrs. Morin was immigration inspector until ill health forced him to retire. In 1909 they took a homestead near St. Paul. On Mrs. Morin's death, about 25 years ago, Mother Morin moved to St. Paul town where she resided until 1942 when she went to Youville, Ontario at St. Albert.

She leaves to mourn three sons, Alphonse of Vancouver, Napoleon of St. Paul, Minn., and Desiderius of Spokane, Washington; two daughters, Rev. Sister Leona of Tacoma, Wash. and Marie Leona of Oakland, California, also seven grand-children.

Federal services were held at St. Joseph's Church at Edmonton with Father Gerard officiating. The Rev. Father's choir rendered hymns. Pallbearers were: Messrs. P. Bennett, A. A. Galt, J. M. Fontaine, Wm. Knuth, Roland Martin and Pvt. High. Interment took place in St. Edmund Catholic cemetery.

Drummond Cape Cod House

nursery and plenty of all-important roomy closet space.

A pleasing feature of The Drummond is the front hall. Any room can be reached from it without entering another first. The side entrance hall gives handy access to the garage, basement, kitchen, downstairs lavatory and bedroom. There is a convenient coat closet in each hall.

Frame construction with wide siding covers the exterior walls. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. And the front wall is veneered with brick.

The main body of the house is 30'x28' with full basement. The overall dimensions are 40'x28'. The floor area is 900 square feet with 1938 cubic feet exclusive of the garage.

For further information about The Drummond, write Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn.

House Total Off Target

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—New dwelling units completed in Canada during the first 11 months of 1948 totalled 63,033, the bureau's figures reported yesterday.

The total for November alone was 5,701, the highest for any month in the year. October completions were 5,164.

Though the total still was far from the government's 1948 housing target of 90,000, the bureau's figures did not include dwelling units derived from conversion of existing premises. Unofficial estimates place these at 5,000 for the 11-month period.

The average length of time required to build the dwelling units completed in November was six months, a slight decline from the October estimate of 6.1 months, but up from the low of 5.4 months reported in September.

Early Ownership Of Homes Urged

Edmonton Builders Cite Reasons For Suggestion

A natural desire on the part of most newly-married couples is the ownership of a house. In it and around it can be accumulated the possessions and associations which can turn any kind of house into a home.

The sense of security and solidity attached to the ownership of one's own house contributes to the happiness of the family and the good of the community.

USUALLY LONG TIME

For some new families the goal is achieved immediately, but they are the fortunate few. Some are destined to be renters always, perhaps because of an occupation which requires moves from city to city, or perhaps because they prefer that way. Most of the others will own a house only after years of waiting and rigorous self-denial.

Almost anyone can think of families which have managed to acquire a house but only after many years of married life. The burdens of bringing up a family were too great to allow such a step in the early years. But later with savings and higher pay the hopes of many years were fulfilled at last. There is always a bit of tragedy in that delayed step because the sweets of a permanent home are less to some extent when the children are grown up and departed to homes of their own.

GREAT DEAL LOST

In the meantime a great deal has been lost and the children suffer the most. It may be that no roomer are they settled in one community, friendships made and school relationships established, then they must move to a distant part of the city. The old associations are rudely broken and the process of re-establishment must begin all over again. If such disruptions are repeated frequently, the result is a feeling of insecurity and injustice which may remain throughout life.

BUILDERS ARE AWARE

Various people are necessarily aware of these conditions because of their occupations. Among them are the builders of houses. These men are sometimes accused of being hard-boiled, and they may have to appear so at times. But they do not enjoy explaining to some would-be customers that their financial resources are not great enough for the purpose. Building a house is an expensive business, unfortunately but everyone should realize the fact.

To meet a grave need the members of the Edmonton House Builders' Association worked out plans for a house designed to be within the financial reach of families living on moderate incomes. The plan is for a house stripped of all the frills but quite sufficient for decent and healthful living.

Such a house, with one bedroom will meet the needs of a young family even with one small child. It should carry a family over the first few years while furniture is being added and paid for.

CAN BE EXPANDED

Families usually grow in size and income as the years pass by. Therefore, the small house is planned for later expansion by the addition of one or two bedrooms or by the expansion of the common living quarters.

In many cases such a house would be added to by the owner himself or with the aid of friends or relatives. In this city men, and even women, have built houses partly and wholly. The builders have not been patients of such efforts but have helped with advice and assistance.

At the moment the only bar to the building of a considerable number of such houses is financial. The Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has declined to approve the plan for the time being. The plan is feasible in the opinion of experienced and hard-headed builders who worked out the plan.

Seen Around Teen 'Alley'

By BERNIE MAJOR

High teens, it's your old chum turned into a new one. He's got a new job, a new car and a new girl. It's a new day, a new life, a new start. It's a new beginning.

Our editorial advisor, Tommy Graham, puts the finger on me and says we got to get more news, names and data on teen activities. He says to me, "Bernie, you get around town a lot, you attend most teen affairs, how's about giving us a weekly column for the teen page?"

Well, a columnist, I reply—never, never my boy, but here I am making a try at it. I guess I'm an odd ball, but then that Tommy has persuaded ways.

But I'll fool him, I'll just send in this sort of stuff and I'm sure he won't find it interesting enough to give the okay for it to go to print. I'll just send in this sort of stuff and I'm sure he won't find it interesting enough to give the okay for it to go to print.

Oh, well, get to be a newspaperman some day so I might as well start now. Who knows I might turn out to be Westbrook Pegler or Drew Pearson, or maybe a Walter Winchell, who knows? I'll guess I'll be a writer, wouldn't it? Guess I'll be a writer, wouldn't it?

The trouble with the world today is that too many young men are not making with too many young girls. You young fellows haven't got a chance. Formed that opinion? There day evening while attending the opening night of "Kismet" at the 49—that super colossal show we teens put on.

What's wrong with that? But the old guys with the young gals got a chance. I questioned fellow teener Bud Murray. But look at them, I danced, all out with a bunch of old joes.

WHEN LACES of your slating boots come untied or loose it's always nice to receive a helping hand from an unsuspecting male. That's the opinion of teen-ager Kay Spraklin who truly appreciated having her laces tied by Don "Sir Walter Raleigh" Symington, who just happened along at the precise moment.

Sleigh Ride, Dance Attracts 200 Teens

Friday evening, Jan. 14, marked Scena's first social event of the new year, when the Scena Badminton Club sponsored a sleigh ride and dance.

In attendance were six sleighs packed full of happy students dressed in typical lamppost fashion. After an extensive tour of the South Side and the University grounds, the sleighs brought the happy throng back to the school whereupon the 200 students commenced to dance.

Bud Spevack, president of the club acted as master of ceremonies. Prizes were awarded to Jean Ruman and Dick Shalmer, winners of the slalom race, with other prizes being won by Marilyn Froh and Gordon Shalmer. Admire Cully and Hans Finster and Dorset Sieback and Cliff Golik.

When the dancing began to "fizzle out," the school band took over and gave forth with some old-time music which brought the seemingly fatigued dancers back to their feet.

In attendance were Miss J. Young, Miss C. A. Halmgren, G. W. Robertson, R. R. Fink, O. A. Venn, and J. Hagen, who acted as advisor to the club.

The longest run of a theatrical production was the 228th consecutive performance of "Chu Chin Stephen's College on 'The Froster' in Northern Ontario."

Talk about gall. And it was like good butter of the pure unadulterated kind.

Somewhere a veritable fiend in human form, sneaked into the Dairy Farmers' convention room at the Macdonald hotel Friday and pasted a big sign on the wall that read:

"For the smoothest spread To put on bread Buy margarine."

Muttering milk merchants were all for calling in the Mounties, Scotland Yard and the FBI to run the miscreant to earth. Quick thinkers saved the situation. The word "butter" was hastily pasted over the hideous denigration "margarine."

Actually the dairymen, as good as dead as spots as you'll find anywhere, enjoyed a few hearty chuckles over the episode.

The banquet was right down a milk producer's cow alley. Of course there was cream of milk soup and baked Alaska, palate pleasers well spiked with products of the dairy industry.

There was choice of tea, coffee or milk in the way of liquid refreshments but in their selections the farmers kind of let the industry down. They drank tea. A majority favored coffee—four of five taking it black, too—but not a single ordered milk.

Edmonton's Bob Bailey got all mixed up in his introduction. He was talking about Dairy Commissioners and the Dairy Commission for five minutes but kept calling him Dr. Thornton.

One time hockey star, "Barney" Stanley has recommended the introduction in Canada of the continuous churn for making butter and at least a few end and butter comes out of the churning process and is labelled.

The continuous churn is being used experimentally in the United States at present but some European countries now have it operating in the big dairies.

All this talk about butter and churns reminds me of the first churn my mother used in the old homestead. It wasn't very complicated. It looked like a large tall keg with a light-filling cover. A wooden hand-plunger worked up and down through a hole in the lid.

You just dumped in the cream and started working the plunger. When your arms got tired you stopped, rested, pumped the churn to see if things were thickening. Finally, if you didn't play out you had more to do.

I'll never forget the excitement in the district when my aunt, Maggie, brought a new factory-made churn.

This also looked like a tall keg or small barrel but it was mounted horizontally on an iron frame. You worked it with your feet. This was considered really something and people came miles around to watch the modern churn do its stuff.

Aunt Maggie became so expert in handling this churn she used to need a horse as she worked the foot treadle.

One day she failed to screw the lid on tight enough. Without warning, about five gallons of half and half cream butter and half cream went cascading over the kitchen floor.

Aunt Maggie was a religious woman. She didn't touch the dirt that did just about everything else.

When my folks heard about it they chuckled, because our old-fashioned, upright churn never pulled any tricks like that.

Soon the new streamlined, continuous churn will make Aunt Maggie's "modern" foot-powered machine look pretty badly out of date.

Mr. and Mrs. John Edmondson will be eating pale pink, violent, green or perhaps even purple margarine if the majority of Canada's dairy farmers have their way.

Delegates at the Dairy Farmers of Canada Association annual convention here Friday, urged an immediate appeal against the ruling allowing sale of margarine.

Delegates asked that a minimum floor price of 62 cents per pound for butter be imposed for the next five years and removal of ceiling prices "at the earliest possible moment."

The better resolution didn't receive unanimous approval in the discussion stage.

Alex Mercer, Vancouver, said: "I feel the dairy industry may hurt itself with the public if we are placed in the position where butter might go to one dollar a pound and we urge a minimum floor price."

New board of directors was named with R. M. H. Bailey and J. W. Madocks of Edmonton, President and Vice-President.

Federal income taxes were blamed for the drop in butter production by Provincial Minister of Agriculture Hon. David Lee in addressing at banquet Friday evening.

Producers feel they are "working for the income tax department" under a certain level of production, said the minister.

Taximan Fined
Found guilty of dangerous driving, Terrance Teague, driver for Fred Knott, was fined $20 and costs in police-court Friday.

Dec. 26, Teague was driver of a car which hit the curb, then skidded and knocked off two fence posts on 109 street near 82 avenue.

U of A Team Wins, Loses
University of Alberta debaters recorded one victory and one loss during the Metcoun cup inter-campus debates at the four western universities last night. Manitoba with two wins holds the debating trophy.

Issue of the debate was the inclusion of a Bill of Rights in the Canadian constitution.

Only team to contend successfully in favor of such legislation was the University of Manitoba, on its own campus at Winnipeg. At Edmonton, Saskatoon, and Vancouver, the teams who favored a Bill of Rights for Canada failed to impress their judges with their arguments.

Defeated here were Charles Vanover and Travis Miller of the University of Alberta, and at Vancouver were Lorne Calhoun and Gordon Wyatt, all of the UBC.

The UBC was represented in Vancouver by Alastair Fraser and Jim Sutherland.

The UBC's defeat, held at Convention Hall, the visiting Manitobans outscored the American Bill of Rights had failed in its purpose and pointed to the disunion of the north and south of the border against the negro.

There is a lot of talk in this issue, they said, "but it doesn't mean anything there."

The local debaters claimed only through such legislation as a Bill of Rights could the individual be properly protected and gave examples in which they claimed these rights had been flouted.

A draft Bill of Rights was presented by the Edmonton team, with the claim it was an ideal piece of legislation, since it recognized the mistakes of the past and endeavored to overcome them.

HMMMMMM . . . THIS LOOKS LIKE FUN FOR ME . . .

WEE WIDGETS like junior charmer James Huff have a home away from home while busy Mom is tied up in the workaday world. Some little people come every day to the Edmonton Creche Day Nursery to be fed, bathed, napped, clothed and entertained. Jimmy is happy as a lark playing with his great big ball.

GOODIES FOR BABY TOMMY

MMMMM . . . GOOD . . . well we hope it's good 'cause this little blinker, Thomas Fuller, seems to be fairly doubtful about this whole process of being fed by nurse Mary Myers. Miss Myers is in charge of the nursery with several assistants ready with willing hands. Babies from two weeks to six years of age are accepted for daily care at this nursery.

Cared For
At Creche

Battling the budget these days often requires a helping hand from the Mom of the household. A working hand . . . from nine-to-five.

This means the little ones must be looked after in some other way.

Answer to many a working-mother's problem is the Edmonton Creche and Day Nursery Society.

Each day, nurse-in-charge, Mary Myers and her staff of assistants play mother to hundreds of little people from the ages of two weeks to six years.

The children are fed, entertained and tucked away for regular naps for a very minor fee to the mother.

Amazingly enough, says Nurse Myers, the children don't seem to miss their mothers. They're too busy having a good time with the other kiddies.

Some of them like to draw, some like to play games, some like to color pictures . . . and others like to just run around and attempt to create a havoc. But they all enjoy their time at the Creche.

And mothers are happy about this. This is a Red Feather Service and one which is greatly needed and appreciated in Edmonton.

Volunteer assistance is gratefully received, whether in the form of toys and games for the kiddies, or actual help with their care.

IT TAKES A LOT OF CONCENTRATION FOR A GOOD COLORING JOB

BUSY AS BEES are these cute-as-buttons little people. pictures of great big lions, sweet little kittens, saucy piglets to entertain, says Nurse Myers, just keep their hands filled with something to do, keep them well-fed . . . and all is serene. They're busy and happy at their play or work of coloring and the House That Jack Built. Little men like this are easy

SANDMAN IS COMING TO THESE SLEEPY TOTS TODAY

WYNKEN, BLYNKEN AND NOD have led these little child at the Creche has a fine nap during the day. Each month the Edmonton Creche and Nursery Society reports the number of meals given, the number of guest children looked after, and Nurse Myers proudly thinks of all the little people who come and go under her care.
